Indianapolis Insurance Executive Susan Rider Named Vice President of NABIP

WASHINGTON, DC – Susan Rider, an Indianapolis-based insurance executive, was named vice president of the National Association of Benefits and Insurance Professionals Board of Trustees at the association's 93rd Annual Convention this week in New Orleans, Louisiana.

"Susan brings a wealth of professionalism and expertise to our board," said Janet Trautwein, CEO of NABIP. "She always leads by example and builds up others so that they rise-up to become leaders too. I'm ecstatic to begin working with her in this new role to advance NABIP's goals and expand the association's reach."

Rider currently serves as the director of compliance and HR consulting at Human Capital Concepts. Previously, she was chief operating officer and head of sales for Preventia Group.

Rider has held numerous leadership position at all levels of the association since she joined almost 20 years ago. Her legislative background and lobbying skills have helped her home state of Indiana promote legislative and regulatory policies that have improved health insurance coverage access and affordability for state residents. Rider is also a highly regarded instructor for many of NABIP's certification courses including wellness, DEI efforts and self-funding.

Outside of NABIP, Susan is adjunct faculty in organizational leadership at Indiana University-Purdue University Indianapolis. She holds a position on the Continuing Education Advisory Council of the Indiana Department of Insurance. She is also a certified facilitator with the NET Institute, specializing in addiction and substance use disorder in the workplace.

Rider graduated from Indiana University – Purdue University Indianapolis with a degree in general studies and received her master's in strategic leadership and design from the University of Indianapolis. She lives in Westfield, Indiana, with her family.

"I am honored to serve as the next vice president of NABIP's Board of Trustees," said Rider. "My professional life has been dedicated to bettering this industry, and I look forward to continuing that work in this new role."
